Having traveled far and wide, and experienced many different cultures.... my heart always remained in Wales. My artwork therefore revolves around the use of Celtangles or repeat Celtic patterns. I also love to create photo-realistic Welsh landscape paintings, that make ideal bespoke memory gifts.

Dawn Harries is a Welsh artist with a passion for nature and wildlife. Primarily a landscape painter, she draws inspiration from the stunning natural beauty of the British countryside, especially her local surroundings of Wales with its rugged coastline.

She loves to capture the effects of light and shadow in her work, using various mediums in an impressionistic style.

Dawn's work can be purchased directly through her website, plus various galleries, including the Makers in Crickhowell, where she has a permanent collection on show.

"My subject-matter comes mostly from 'events' in the landscape that have stopped me in my tracks - a compelling arrangement of light and natural forms, seeming to echo my frame of mind. I try to capture the transient experience and fix it in time."

Gigi's current work will be showcased at the Ardent Gallery, Brecon for the month of March as part of Brecon Women's Festival. As featured artist, Gigi will be giving a talk about her process, and spending a day painting in the gallery.

I'm a mixed media artist with a love for experimenting and recently I've been working with inks, resin, gold, copper and silver leaf. I apply art resin as the final layer, which makes a tough, heat and water resistant surface.

The idea to use art resin started when I made splashbacks for our kitchen and thought I could create art that is also functional and can be used in your kitchen or bathroom. You of course can frame the artwork and hang it anywhere you like :) I'm also working on creating table tops called 'earth patterns'. I'll be launching these at the Crickhowell Open Studios May Bank Holiday from my Gilwern stiwdio.

There is some quality unique to this county of Pembrokeshire, which gets under one's skin and makes me want to paint.

Water colour is my medium of choice as it seems to reflect the fleeting, fluid atmosphere here. Experiments with oils have also been exciting.

Looking forward to showing my work at The North Pembrokeshire Open Studios At Swmbarch, Letterston in August and in the Goat Street Gallery in St Davids.

Living on the western edge of Wales, Ro's love of the coastline is central to her work. Observations and experiences within that landscape, a meeting place between land and sea, provide a source of ideas which are re-worked in the studio.

Ro's paintings emerge from an intuitive enquiry into the physicality of materials. The process of making - layering, concealing, revealing, eroding - provides the interface with which to translate subtle connections between the outer physical landscape and the inner mindscape.

Based in Goodwick, Pembrokeshire, Ro's work can be seen at The Gallery – Yr Oriel, Newport, Pems., and during the North Pembrokeshire Open Studio Event in August / September, or at other times at her studio by appointment, as well as other art events throughout the year.

I opened my Studio/Gallery in Solva, in 2013. Not far from Davids, Solva is nestled in St Brides bay. It is a pretty little harbour village. Not unlike St Davids, it has its own pilgrims. Artists from far and wide come to capture its beauty. Whether its lashing winter storms or a bright summers day in the harbour, there is always something inspiring me to paint and put in the window of my Little Gallery in Solva, "Oriel Fach".

I started drawing last year, which then developed into painting. I started using acrylic paint on canvas. I have recently started using watercolour, which is quite different to acrylic.

Living in Aberystwyth, the Ceredigion coastline is never short of producing beautiful scenery to paint, especially the forever changing colours and sky. I find painting is so therapeutic but I must have an idea/scene, which excites me in order to paint. One of the best things about painting is there is no right or wrong way, this gives me my individuality as a painter.

Nathalie is currently seeking venues to exhibit her work, get in touch direct to discuss this or to purchase any of her work.

My work is handmade, mainly on the wheel, and functional. I was only interested in throwing on the wheel until a customer asked me to make a dolphin. Since then I have hand-built several items.

I use stoneware clay, which is fired up to 1240°C. Items are thrown, dried, and trimmed before their first 'bisque' firing (1000°). They are then glazed and re-fired.

Much of my work is inspired by nature.

I have a workshop/shop in Troedryhiw, South Wales and an Etsy shop. I run classes and workshops for both adults and children.

oriel rhosyn

- arrives in Ystradgynlais

Oriel Rhosyn is a new gallery and craft shop located in the vibrant town of Ystradgynlais. Opened in December 2019 by glass artist John McVeigh it brings a much-needed gallery to the area. Even now the collection of artists and crafters is still evolving and expanding.

From the street it would be understood if you passed by, but those who open the door find themselves surprised and impressed. Likened to the wardrobe and Narnia the entrance corridor opens out into 2 rooms of local hand-made crafts. A selection of various textiles, jewellery wood turning, pyrography willow weaving, glassware, ceramics, handmade soaps and other fragrant items that add to the assault on the senses.

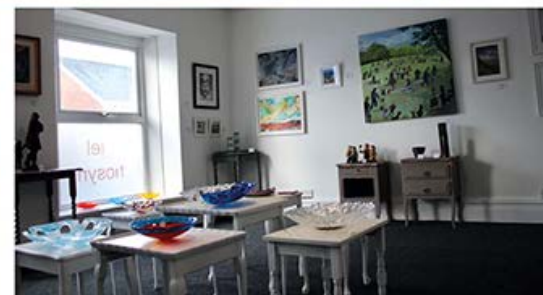

Venture up the stairs and you will find the gallery. In the front rooms are displayed paintings of all sizes and prices, photography, ceramics, sculpture and more glass work by both established and upcoming artists. 'Welsh Lowry' Nick Holly has painted a selection of work especially for the gallery, including a large and small study of the Gorsedd in Ystradgynlais.

In the 3rd upstairs room local amateur art groups will be encouraged to display with a hope to encourage and develop local art.

So, if you are looking for a small gift or a piece of artwork for your home Oriel Rhosyn has a wide range for all tastes and is even open on a Sunday for those who work during the week.

The oriel CRiC gallery has welcomed artists from Borth Arts to Crickhowell. Much of the work by the fifteen exhibiting artists is inspired by the culture, history and landscape of Wales, often reflecting aspects of living on the west coast of Wales. With work as varied as hand coloured Lino Prints and Chine Cole by Stuart Evans, mixed media pieces by Sue Lee and bowls using locally sourced woods by wood turner Phil Dalton, visitors to the gallery this spring will enjoy exploring the rich variety of work by this diverse group of artists living and working in Borth and Ynyslas.

Images: Wood Turned Bowl, Phil Dalton, 'Ocean Belle' Lino Print, Stuart Evans

The landscape and coastline feature in a number of the artists' work. Using pure watercolour technique, Neil Johnson's landscapes reflect the way in which we perceive the environment and the effects of time on our surroundings. Peter Jones is inspired by the sea, using ink on board, while Eve Smith works mainly with oil on canvas, depicting the landscapes and seascapes of the area.

Images: Morphic Resonance, Peter Jones, Mackerel in the sea, Gabrielle Adamson, The Antique shop, Sarah Pugh

Suzette Pratten said, "Showcasing creativity of such variety by this collective of artists is very much in keeping with the ethos of the gallery. Following on from the spring exhibition the annual Open Art exhibition will continue to celebrate creativity. Artists are invited to submit entries to the Crickhowell Open Art competition in the oriel CRiC gallery. (Closing date 31 March 2020). Entry details and Terms & Conditions can be requested from:

openart@visitcrickhowell.co.uk

She added, "The competition not only gives many artists the opportunity to showcase their work, it results in an exciting exhibition for visitors to Crickhowell. We are very grateful to the individuals who support the gallery so generously by donating prizemoney. This year a new category for Digital Art supported by Lumen Art Projects is adding yet another dimension to the exhibition."

The Crickhowell Resource & Information Centre (CRiC), which included the oriel CRiC gallery is open seven days per week (Monday to Saturday 10am to 5pm, Sundays 10am to 1.30pm)

A solo short exhibition of works by renowned illustrator and printmaker Robert Tavener (1920 – 2004). After 6 years' service in the Second World War, including involvement in the D-Day landings, Tavener made a career teaching in art colleges in the South East and all the while built a reputation for his works as an illustrator and printmaker, gaining commissions from London Transport, Shell, the BBC, The Radio Times and many others. He described his works as being: "English Countryside and English Architecture: shape, pattern, colour, texture design." His work was accepted for 34 years in succession at the RA's Summer Exhibition and he was senior fellow of the Royal Society of Painter/Printmakers. His work is held in over 25 UK collections including the V&A and the Government Art. The Chapel Gallery has invited Richard Turkington of Fifties Art to show a beautiful selection of framed and unframed original works by Robert Tavener over one weekend. www.fiftiesart.com
